Dear Tony Hardie:

I hope this letter finds you well. I am a Data Analyst and am writing you on behalf of Florida State University's Information Technology Services department. We have made tremendous strides in recent years in developing Machine Learning models dedicated to streamlining and enhancing the methods used to scout College players and make selections.

With the progress made, we desire to introduce our research to your organization to benefit your process, and enrich your analytics department. We have spent nearly a decade working on and perfecting our models utilizing new technology and models to make your process simpler, and with more haste. Our model's process in how they gather data and information is fully transparent. Each step of the process is fully visible, as to leave no room for doubt in how its procedure functions. With your investment and trust in our work, I have full faith that the rate we are researching will grow exponentially, and that your organization will benefit greatly.

Sincerely,

Isaiah Lindsey

Data Analyst
